

DR. MISHA INNISS-THOMPSON

Department of Psychology at Cornell University

About the Speaker

Dr. Inniss-Thompson's research examines the impact of families, communities, and schools in shaping Black girls' mental health and wellness using a cultural-assets perspective. She is passionate about centering youth voices in the research process through critical approaches such as photovoice and youth participatory action research.

Where and When?

Hasmini House

February 15th - 5-7 PM CST

For questions, email Prof Leath:
leath@wustl.edu

About the book

This Here Flesh is a space for Black spiritual words of liberation, lament, rage, and rest; Cole Arthur Riley is the Executive Curator on the project of The Center for Dignity and Contemplation and the creator of Black Liturgies.

A sneak peak...

We have found ourselves too busy for beauty. We spin our bodies into chaos with the habits and expectations of the dominating culture, giving and doing and working.

Rest is not the reward of our liberation, nor something we lay hold of once we are free. It is the path that delivers us there.

Funded by The Center for the Study of Race and Ethnicity (CRE2)

Figure S1

KTT Recruitment Flyer

Figure S2

KTT Reminder Flyer

KITCHEN TABLE CHECK-IN

What kind of community have you found at WashU and how has it helped you navigate this space? Do you know how to create your own belonging?

Check this out...

Little Simz
"I love you, I hate you - The Film"
on YouTube

What enrages you? How do you release rage?

Khrystal's Korner

Sankofa: a word from the Akan people of Ghana; translated literally to mean- "it is not taboo to fetch what is at risk of being left behind"

It can be incredibly difficult to unearth parts of us that we have buried deep inside the crevices of our soul. The parts of us that we would rather leave behind. Sankofa reminds us that retrieving these parts of us are necessary for our personal and collective growth.

Ways to Engage

Of the stories that Riley offers us, which stand out to you the most? Which do you find the most relatable? Did any take your breath away?

Kitchen Table Talk Series - February 15th @ 5 PM - Hasmini House

Figure S3

KTT Additional Reminder Flyer